

The Anglican Centre in Rome

Growing Together in Unity and Mission

February 18 - 23, 2009

From the preface

“...this is a call to action, based upon an honest appraisal of what has been achieved in our dialogue...there is, we feel, enough common ground to take seriously how we work together... IARCCUM is offering practical suggestions on the way in which Anglican and Roman Catholic ecumenical participation can be appropriately fostered and carried forward.”

Bishop Christopher Epting, Ecumenical and Interreligious Relations Officer for The Episcopal Church and Mary Reath, Governor of the Anglican Centre, will lead a guided exploration of Growing Together in Unity and Mission, the agreed statement of the International Anglican-Roman Catholic Commission for Unity and Mission.

The days will include discussions with Vatican officials, meals out together, guided touring and time for relaxing.

The Anglican Centre in Rome

Growing Together in Unity and Mission

February 18 - 23, 2009

The first part of Growing Together in Unity and Mission “offers an honest appraisal of what has been achieved in the dialogue,” while not shying away from remaining difficulties. The second part presents specific recommendations for the local expression of joint worship and work.

Participants are asked to read Growing Together in Unity and Mission (ISBN 978-0-281-05939-3), before arriving so that there can be a healthy exchange of ideas.

Cost of course €500
